Lyndon Group Taps Anthony M. Salerno As Managing Director of Business Development

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif., June 1, 2007 - Lyndon Group, LLC (LG), a premier financial consulting firm serving some of the best-known companies in the world, as well as middle market and emerging growth businesses, today announced that it has hired Anthony M. Salerno to serve as managing director of business development.

In his new position, Salerno, 35, will play an integral role in continuing LG's recent rapid expansion by leading all business development functions as well as positioning LG for future growth.

Recognized for its exceptional customer service and high caliber consultants, LG specializes in sophisticated project management, Sarbanes-Oxley compliance, SEC reporting, information technology services, audit preparation, acquisition due diligence and integration, internal control outsourcing, lean manufacturing solutions and personnel placement.

"Given Tony's diverse experience in Fortune 500, middle market and growth companies, he has a wealth of great relationships and we have high expectations for his contributions to LG," said Kenneth L. Jones, CPA, founder and executive managing director of LG. "His outstanding leadership qualities are sure to further our recent successes and tremendous growth, and we are proud to have him on our team."

Salerno was most recently the North American controller for Aston Martin, a division of Ford Motor Company, where he directed the financial growth of the company through its two most profitable years in history. Previously he led Saleen, Inc. to profitability and subsequent recapitalization as vice president of operations. Salerno's other experience include senior finance positions at Onex, International Speedway Corporation and Penske Corporation. Salerno has an MBA from the University of Southern California in Los Angeles and a BS in Finance and Accounting from Wilkes University located in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania.
