NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. November 6, 2007 – The Open Compliance and Ethics Group (OCEG) is pleased to announce that Lyndon Group (LG) has today joined the OCEG community of interest as a member organization. LG is the first financial consulting firm to join OCEG, proving they are a leader in corporate governance related services. They hope to pave the way for other firms to utilize and perpetuate OCEG's many valuable tools and resources that enable businesses to be compliance and ethics-focused.

“OCEG welcomes Lyndon Group as a member entity and we applaud their understanding of the importance of governance, risk and compliance (GRC) as a key element in financial consulting,” commented Doug Beeuwsaert, Vice President, Performance and Assessment at OCEG.

“Joining OCEG is of two-fold importance to us,” said Kenneth L. Jones, CPA, founder and executive managing director of LG. “Our clients get access to the most up to date best practices from the most comprehensive governance, risk and compliance database, and we plan to be a major contributor to OCEG best practice projects in order to continually build this phenomenal, real-time research tool.”

OCEG provides information to some of the largest, most reputable companies in the world, yet can also meet the needs of a single end-user. It is the only nonprofit organization that offers comprehensive guidance, standards, benchmarks and tools for integrating governance, risk and compliance processes. The unique organizational structure allows members to take advantage of contributions from thousands of experts in companies that are all on a similar mission: to align company performance with company objectives.
